GEORGE HARRISON—You (3:40); producer: George Harrison; writer: George Harrison; publisher: Ganga, BMI. Apple 1884 (Capitol). Harrison makes a strong move back toward rock here with a catchy cut highlighted by his strongest sing-ing in some time and a catchy title that works effectively as a hook throughout. Cut somewhat similar in sound to his "All Things Must Pass" days. Flip: World Of Stone (4:46), info same in all categories.

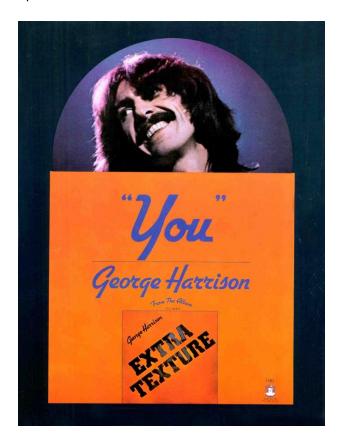

GEORGE HARRISON (Apple 49342)
You (3:40) (Ganga/BMI — G. Harrison)
There's no doubt George will self a bundle of records with this wall-of-sound approach a la "What Is Love" (the Bangladesh concert sound), although we're still looking for the next change from Harrison the musician. Maybe it will appear elsewhere on the upcoming "Extra Texture (Read All About It)" LP coming up soon, from which this single was culled. Flip: World Of Stone.

Picture Sleeve:

East-coast sleeves have a round cut, and the side with George's picture is the open side.

West-coast sleeves have a modified round cut, and the side with the title is the open side.

The single's highest chart position was #19 in Cash Box. Although this made the record a moderate success, Capitol did not reissue this single onto their main series. Instead, they combined "You" with "Dark Horse" (Apple 1877) to form a Star Line single using the two A-sides (Capitol Star Line 6244). There are two label variations known of the single on the tan Star Line label with "C" logo — "rights" information in black across the label, or rights information in thin print at the bottom of the label. The single also exists with the tan Star Line label with dome logo from 1978, and on the rainbow Star Line label (as X-6244) from c. 1986.
