When you have heard one of these new records, you will understand. This phenomenal new series of albums is called "Staged for Stereo." The stereo sound is totally electrifying. These new recordings will provide excitement in sound never before achieved in the medium, perhaps the ultimate in directional stereo. They are that uncommon. That is why this revolutionary packaging has been created. Each record is enclosed in a sturdy transparent plastic box. Each box is hinged and locked to keep the record dust-free and fully protected. No disc has ever received such regal treatment. These "Staged for Stereo" albums deserve it. Here are the first five albums in this astonishing new series. Hear them, and be prepared for an amazing experience.

Label 62

At the tail end of 1961, Capitol introduced the label style that would take them as far as 1968. They moved the Capitol logo from the side of the label to the top and removed the spires. This change allowed them to use more space from left to right for the song titles.
